THIRD REPORT

Of His Majesty's Commissioners of Inquiry into Ecclesiastical Revenues and Patronage in Ireland.

TO THE KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.

WE, the Commissioners constituted and appointed for inquiring into ecclesiastical revenues and patronage in Ireland, under and by virtue of Your Majesty's royal commission, bearing date at Westminster, the 15th day of August, in the third year of Your Majesty's reign; wherehy we, whose hands and seals are hereunto annexed, and the other Commissioners therein named and directed, are authorized and empowered to make a full and correct inquiry respecting the revenues and patronage helonging to the several archiepiscopal and episcopal Sees—to all cathedral and collegiate churches—and to all ecclesiastical benefices, including donatives, perpetual curacies and chapelries, with or without cure of souls, in that part of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, called Ireland;—and the names of the several patrons thereof, and other circumstances therewith connected;—and to certify to Your Majesty, from time to time, under the hands and seals of any three or more of us, the Commissioners, our several proceedings, from time to time, as the same shall be, respectively, completed and perfected;—

Do most humhly heg leave to suhmit to Your Majesty, that since the date of our last report relating to collegiate and cathedral churches, and to all dignitaries, prebendaries, and canons thereof respectively, our attention has heen confined to the last part of the foregoing inquiry, which relates to the revenues and patronage of all ecclesiastical henefices, including donatives, perpetual curacies and chapelries, in the two provinces of Armagh and Tuam.

A copy of the querics, which were directed to be transmitted to each parochial, or other, Incumhent, for the purpose of eliciting the fullest information upon the matters which are made the suhject of investigation hy Your Majesty's commission, we have caused to he annexed to this our present report; from which it will appear, that the several matters inquired into, with respect to ecclesiastical henefices, were—the names of the parishes constituting each benefice or union; the denomination of each parish, whether a rectory, vicarage, perpetual cure or chapelry; whether with or without cure of souls; whether subject to episcopal, or to any, and what, peculiar or exempt jurisdiction; and the names of any chapelries within each henefice, not having separate Incumbents:—the extent, acreable contents, and general quality of the land in each and every parish, and the name of the county and diocese in which each henefice is situate:—the population of the respective parishes, according to the census of 1831:—the names and dates of admission of the respective Incumbents; the numher of curates employed by each Incumbent, respectively; and the amount of stipend, or other allowance, paid to each curate:—the gross and net amounts of the annual incomes of the respective benefices, the sources from whence arising, and the amount of each source of income, respectively:—the amount of any yearly payments or temporary charges, under their respective titles, charged charged upon, or made out of, the gross Incomes, excepting rates and taxes paid in respect of the glebe-houses and offices, repairs and Curates' stipends; whether there is a glebe-house, or not, in each Benefice; if so, when built, at what expense, or from what funds; whether under the old or new acts; the amount of the sums certified to have been expended in the building or improvement of the glebe-houses:—the sums charged on the present Incumbents, as well as those payable to them by their successors, on account of the monies supplied out of their private funds; the amounts of the gifts and loans granted by the Trustees and Commissioners of First-Fruits for building or improving; and the amount of the annual instalments repayable on the loans aforesaid:—whether the Incumbents are usually resident within their benefices, and in the glebe-houses; and if not, for what reason, and where resident; and, if there be not any glebe-house, the amount of house-rent or lodging-money payable by Incumbents:—the number of churches or chapels within each benefice; how many persons each is capable of accommodating; and, in case of more than one, their relative distances from each other; when, at what expense, and from what funds, each was built; the charges subsisting on the parishes in 1832 on account of each church; the time at which the same will be paid off; and the duty performed in each church or chapel:—the average annual amounts assessed upon the respective benefices, distinguishing the sums raised for church purposes, or at the exclusive vestries, from those raised for general purposes, or at the open and general vestries, for the three years ending 1831 or 1832:—the names of the persons to whom the advowsons of the respective benefices are reputed to belong; as also, the names of any Incumbents to whom may belong, in right of their respective benefices, the nomination to any perpetual cure, chapelry, &c.:—the names of those persons to whom are payable the rectorial tithes of benefices, and their reputed value, in case the benefices be not rectories:—and, lastly, the names and proper titles of any dignities, prebends or other ecclesiastical preferments or offices, with or without cure of souls, held by Incumbents, with the names of the counties and dioceses in which the same are, respectively, situated.

The order, here enumerated, of the several matters which are made the subject of inquiry, does not accord so precisely with the order in the printed list of queries as with that in the annexed digest;—it having been considered not inexpedient to combine and unite, under one head, the separate and distinct answers given to such subjects of our inquiry, as were more immediately connected the one with the other.

The benefices in the two provinces of Armagh and Tuam amount in number to six hundred and two, which are distributed in the respective dioceses, constituting each of these provinces, as follow:—

These benefices, it is to be observed, are variously constituted, and consist, either of single parishes—of unions of two or more parishes—of appropriate, or impropriate, cures—and of perpetual, or district, cures. Of the benefices aforesaid, three hundred and forty-nine consist of single parishes—one hundred and fifty-nine, of unions of two or more parishes—forty-nine, of appropriate or impropriate cures—thirty-seven, of perpetual cures, in parishes of large extent —and eight, of perpetual district cures, comprised of portions of two or more parishes. In order the better to understand the nature of these several benefices, it may be considered important to the present subject to make a few observations relative to the constitution of each class of these benefices, separately.

In regard to the benefices consisting of single parishes, it is to be remarked, that in some of these parishes a Vicar never was constituted; and as the whole of the tithes are in the perception of the ecclesiastical Incumbent, the benefices so circumstanced, are denominated either rectories, or rectories entire; instances of which will be found in the dioceses of Armagh and Down, but more frequently in that of Derry. In other parishes, both Rectors and Vicars were anciently endowed; and as the canons of 1634 contained a provision for the union of these, which union took place in several instances, though not in all, such benefices are denominated rectories and vicarages; inasmuch as the tithes, both rectorial and vicarial, are enjoyed by the ecclesiastical Incumbent; examples of which occur in almost every diocese. But in all cases where the vicarial tithes are held separate and distinct from the rectorial, and by different persons, and in different capacities—laymen, for instance, being capable of holding rectorial tithes—the benefices are, in such cases, denominated only vicarages; instances of which will be found, of more frequent occurrence, in the respective dioceses of Kilmore, Dromore and Ardagh, than in others; although almost every diocese affords examples of benefices, composed of single parishes, with only the vicarial tithes set apart and reserved for the maintenance of the ecclesiastical Incumbent, consisting for the most part of one-third of the tithes. Of the benefices consisting of single parishes, and denominated either rectories, or rectories and vicarages, or only vicarages, there are three hundred and nineteen in the province of Armagh, and thirty in the province of Tuam. In some of these benefices, it appears a chapelry, having a separate Incumbent, and in others that one or two chapelries, not having separate Incumbents, have been established; and the service, as well of the chapelries, last mentioned, as of the mother or parochial church, devolves on the parochial Incumbent, aided by two or more stipendiary Curates, as occasion may require; of which, the benefices of Cleenish, Clones, Innismacsaint, Aghalurcher, Clogher, Devnish, Derryvullan and Enniskillen, in the diocese of Clogher, afford examples; as well as those of Kinawley, in the diocese of Kilmore, and of Kiltoghart and Clongesh, in the diocese of Ardagh.

With respect to the benefices consisting of unions of two or more parishes, it formed no part of the instructions contained in Your Majesty's Commission to investigate either the causes which may, from time to time, have led to these unions, or the nature and constitution of the several and respective unions. The Commissioners have therefore confined their inquiries to those matters which fell more immediately within the scope of their instructions, and it will appear that most of the subsisting unions consist of parishes, the vicarial tithes of which, for the most part, are enjoyed by the ecclesiastical Incumbents, owing, as it commonly happens, to the rectorial tithes of these parishes being appropriated to the use, either of ecclesiastical corporations, sole or aggregate, or to the rectorial tithes thereof being set apart and reserved to lay purposes; in which cases, all that remains for the discharge of the cure is the small and vicarial, or about one-third of the tithes, the remaining two-thirds generally constituting, what is termed, the rectorial or great tithes. There are, however, exceptions to this general distribution of the tithes; as, in some instances, the vicarial consist of two-thirds, and the rectorial of one-third, of the tithes, which is the case in the united benefices of Killenumery and Killery, in the diocese of Ardagh;—in others, the vicarial consist of five-ninth parts, and the rectorial of four-ninth parts, of the tithes, as appears to be the case in the united benefices of Kilmore and Ballintemple, of Drung and Larah, and of others, in the diocese of Kilmore;—and, in some instances, the vicarial and rectorial tithes are divided into equal moieties, and enjoyed by the respective Vicars and Rectors accordingly, as appears to be the case in the unions of Eastersnow, Kilmactranny and Killenvoy, in the diocese of Elphin, in those of Kilshalvee and Kilconduff, in the diocese of Achonry, and in the benefices of Kilronan and Street, in the diocese of Ardagh;—but, in some instances, the amount of the vicarial tithes is far less than one-third, which is the case in Clontuskart and Drimtemple parishes, in the diocese of Elphin, and of Clonfert, Kilmacumna, Kilrickill, Kilconickny, and other united parishes, in the diocese of Clonfert. Of the benefices, consisting of unions of two or more parishes, there are ninety-four in the province of Armagh, and sixty-five in the province of Tuam; and the gross amount of tithes in these Provinces, appropriated to ecclesiastical corporations, has been compounded for £. 19,752 19*s.* the greater portion of which is demised for terms of years, while the gross amount, set apart and reserved for lay purposes, appears to have been compounded for £.38,957. 4. 2.

The formation of the cures, appropriate and impropriate, grew out of the annexation of parishes to ecclesiastical dignities, or the reservation of them to lay uses, without any vicarages or curacies being endowed in such parishes. In the appropriate parishes, the ecclesiastical Dignitaries were, in right of their dignities, entitled to the tithes and glebes of the parishes so appropriated; as in the impropriate parishes, the tithes thereof were set apart to the use and occupation of laymen; but both parties, Ecclesiastics as well as Laymen, were bound by law to find Curates to perform divine service, and to take charge of the cure of souls within such parishes as were so appropriated or set apart, as aforesaid. The cures however of these parishes were, in many cases, only served by stipendiary Curates or Preachers officiating in the churches or chapels, which Curates were not corporations sole—were without legal succession—and therefore incapable by law of taking a grant, in way of augmentation, by endowment either of lands, or tithes, or both; and, in some places, it was apprehended that the allowance theretofore paid to the ministers or curates serving these cures, might be withdrawn by the Impropriator, Donor or Parson.

To remedy these defects, the Legislature interposed in the 29th year of the reign of King George the Second, by declaring that all appropriate or impropriate curacies or chapelries, thereafter augmented by the Trustees and Commissioners of First-Fruits, should become perpetual cures and benefices, and that the Ministers duly nominated and licensed thereunto, and their successors, be for ever after esteemed in law bodies politic and corporate, and have perpetual succession. A similar provision, to render perpetual such cures as were served by stipendiary Curates, officiating in parishes appropriated to deaneries, dignities and prebends, was introduced under the 11th and 12th George III.;—and the like provision was extended to the cures served by stipendiary Curates in parishes appropriated to archbishoprics and bishoprics, by the act of 23d and 24th George III. Of these appropriate or impropriate perpetual cures there are forty-seven in the province of Armagh, but only two in the

the province of Tuam, as all the parishes in this province have Vicars endowed. The benefices of Ballymakenny, in the diocese of Armagh—of Ardagh, Ballymore, Bonowen, Enniskeen, Forgnay and Nobber, in the diocese of Meath—and that of Larne, in the diocese of Connor, afford examples of perpetual appropriate cures;—and those of Ballymascalan and Tulloghallen, in the diocese of Armagh—of Kilbixy, Castlejordan, and Leney, in the diocese of Meath—of Comber, Newtownards, Bangor, Greyabbey and Hollywood, in the diocese of Down—and Rathaspick benefice, in the diocese of Ardagh, supply instances of perpetual impropriate cures.

In regard to these cures it is further observable, that they are co-extensive and commensurate with the appropriated or impropriated parish, and sometimes comprise an union of two or more impropriate parishes; but this is not the case with respect to the ordinary class of perpetual cures, which contain only a certain district set off in a large parish, and may be considered, of co-eval existence, with the cures appropriated to dignities;—the act of the 11th & 12th George III., which provided for the foundation of the one, containing a like provision for the erection of the other, with the exception of the four in the diocese of Armagh, established under the 7th George III.

The large extent of many parishes—the increase of the number of inhabitants—the insufficient accommodation in the parochial churches, then existing—their great distance from many of the inhabitants—and the consequent inconvenience of resorting to them—are the principal causes which led to the erection of perpetual cures in parishes, and unions, of large extent. The first statute for the foundation of such perpetual cures passed in the 7th year of George III.; but the statute of the 11th and 12th years, of the same reign, made that provision general, which before was only special, and had reference to the rectory of Armagh alone. By this statute all Archbishops and Bishops, and their successors, are by law enabled to erect, or cause to be erected, new churches or chapels in convenient places within parishes of great extent, as to them shall seem proper; provided, however, that the bounds of the respective districts, which shall belong to the cure of every new church or chapel erected, or to be erected, be set out and described in an instrument, to be enrolled under the hand and seal of the diocesan, with the consent of the Incumbent of said parish, under his hand and seal; and such preliminaries having been complied with, the act then declares, with respect to the several districts so set out and described, that they shall be deemed and reputed several and distinct parishes, for the purposes in said act mentioned, and shall be called and known by the name given to them by such instrument as aforesaid;—with respect to the several churches or chapels erected or to be erected therein, that they shall be deemed perpetual cures; and that the Curates thereof, when duly nominated and licensed, shall be capable of receiving any endowment, in the same manner, as the Curate of any impropriate or appropriate parish;—and, with reference to the Curates themselves, that they shall have perpetual succession, shall become bodies politic and corporate, and be capable of receiving and taking any such endowments in lands or tithes, or both, or any augmentation, that shall be granted to them and their successors.

The professed object, therefore, of this legislative enactment was to provide a sufficient number of churches for the celebration of divine service, at convenient distances, for the resort of the respective inhabitants;—and as chapels of ease had been erected in some of these parishes, in pursuance of the laws then in force, it also provided, that districts may be assigned to these chapels of ease, and the Curates thereof made bodies politic and corporate, and capable of enjoying all the like privileges, as before described. The benefices of Derrygortrevy, Moy, Portadown and Woods-chapel, in the diocese of Armagh—those of Drumraney and Kinnegad, in the diocese of Meath—of Derg and Fahan-lower, in the diocese of Derry—of All-Saints, in the diocese of Raphoe—of Arvagh and Mullough, in the diocese of Kilmore—and those of Monevea and Turlough, in the diocese of Tuam, afford examples of perpetual cures erected within parishes or unions of large extent;—of which Cures there are thirty-two in the province of Armagh, and five in the province of Tuam.

The erection of the perpetual district cures, formed from two or more adjoining parishes, is of recent origin; the power of creating these being, for the first time, provided for under an act of the 7th & 8th of his late Majesty King George the Fourth. Circumstances dissimilar from those which led to the foundation of perpetual cures in parishes of large extent, were the principal inducements to the creation of these district cures; namely, the existence of many parishes in Ireland which of themselves were not sufficiently large, severally and separately, to support chapels of ease. To meet the case of such parishes, the power was devised of forming districts from contiguous portions of two or more adjoining parishes, and of erecting new churches or chapels in convenient places within these districts;—and, after prescribing the mode of ascertaining the bounds of these new districts, and providing for the hearing and determining any objections that may be taken thereto on the part of the Incumbents of the several parishes from which such districts may be formed, the act declares, that on the registry and inrolment of the instrument setting out the bounds, those districts shall be deemed several and distinct districts or benefices; shall have all parochial rights for the purposes in said act mentioned, in like manner as other parishes; and be called and known by the name given to them by such instrument; that every church or chapel erected in such districts shall be deemed a perpetual cure; that the curate thereof, when duly nominated and licensed, and his successors, shall become bodies politic and corporate, and be capable of receiving any endowment in such manner as any Curate of any impropriate or appropriate parish, or perpetual cure, is qualified by law to take the same; and that the rates and proportions of salary, payable to the Curates thereof by each of the Incumbents of the adjoining parishes out of which such districts shall be formed, shall be determined by the diocesans; who are also required to appoint and direct the order and rotation, in which the several Incumbents of such adjoining parishes shall, each in their turn, nominate the Curates of such cures respectively. Of these district perpetual cures there are eight in the province of Armagh, but none in the province of Tuam; the benefices of Armaghbraig, Ballygawley and Killylea, in the diocese of Armagh—of Learmount, in the diocese of Derry—of Ardara, in Raphoe diocese—of Dunseverick, in Connor diocese—and those of Bally-James-Duff and Derryheen, in Kilmore diocese, afford examples of districts, formed from contiguous portions of two or more adjoining parishes.

Such is the nature and constitution of the parochial benefices, respectively, which will be found in the digest annexed to this our report. With respect to one class of these benefices, namely, the perpetual cures, it may be observed, that the principle of Legislation of late years will have the effect to diminish, rather than increase, the number of such, more particularly, as have been erected in appropriate parishes—by the enactment which provides for the disappropriation of any rectory, vicarage, tithes or glebes theretofore united to to any archbishopric, bishopric, deanery or other dignity or prebend; and for the annexation of same to the vicarage or perpetual curacy of the same, or of any adjoining, parish; so that each such rectory, vicarage, tithes and glebes glebes or portions thereof, shall, with its respective vicarage or perpetual curacy, form a distinct parish or benefice. The development of this principle has already been carried into effect in the benefices of Ballee, Ballyculter, Brigbt and Saul, which were tberetofore annexed to tbe deanery of Down; in those of Killygarvan, Leck, Lettermacaward and Stranorlar, theretofore annexed to the deanery of Raphoe; and in the benefices of Drumbeg, Drumboe and Kilclief, theretofore annexed to the archdeaconry of Down, as will appear by a reference to tbese benefices, respectively, in the annexed digest.

In regard to the six hundred and two benefices in the two provinces, it will be found that there is cure of souls annexed to every one of them, with the single exception of the rectory or benefice of Killarvey, in the diocese of Meath, wbich is an absolute sinecure;—and it is further observable, that all the benefices aforesaid are subject to episcopal jurisdiction, with two exceptions; namely, the benefice of Newry, in the county of Down, and the benefice, intituled the "Wardenship of Galway," in the diocese of Tuam; the former of which, being situate within the lordship of Newry, is alleged to be free from episcopal jurisdiction; and the latter is reported to be an exempt jurisdiction of a peculiar sort, governed by the college and the lay corporation of Galway.

The wardenship of Galway appears to have been constituted in the fourteenth century, and to have consisted originally of eight vicars, from whom the warden was chosen annually by the lay corporation. It was erected into a royal college by cbarter of King Edward VI., who confirmed to it all the property and privileges it was then possessed of. By its existing constitution, which has been the subject of our inquiry, it is reported to consist of eight parishes;—and tbe church, situate in St. Nicholas parish, Galway, to be both collegiate and parochial; the warden, it appears, is cbosen annually by the corporation, subject to the approbation of tbe Crown, and exercises spiritual jurisdiction over the vicars, who were formerly eight, but are now reduced to two in number; tbe vicars are also elected by the corporation, but inducted by tbe warden, and have the cure of souls over tbe entire union; and in case the warden or the two vicars sbould absent themselves, or neglect the service of the college, the corporation have the power to correct and remove them, and to elect others in their room. It appears also that one-fourtb part of tbe tithes in each of the four parishes of Clare-galway, Oranmore, Shrule and Ballinacourty, forming part of the wardenship, are by act of Parliament vested in the patronage of the Archbishop of Tuam, and allocated for the use of clergymen, to assist the warden and vicars in the discharge of the duties of those parishes, out of which the said tithes arise.

The length and breadth of the parishes and benefices in general, as reported in the annexed digest, expressed either in English or Irish miles, but in many instances, omitted altogether from the silence of the Returns, can only be considered as their reputed, and not their real and precise, extent;—as the incumbents of the benefices, generally, appear to have had no other means of arriving at information on tbis point, than what common reputation or general assent afforded them. The like observation applies, with equal force, to the acreable contents of the benefices and parishes, which have all been reduced to one common measure, except, indeed, in a few dioceses, such as Armagh, Connor, Down, Dromore and Derry, where the Commissioners have been able to avail themselves of such parts of the Ordnance Survey as have been published; but in all other dioceses, particularly where the county books are the authority referred to, precise information is unattainable; and the results of the inquiries made on these subjects may be regarded rather as an approximation to, than, the precise superficies of each benefice; and with respect to the population of the the respective parishes, it has been taken, in every instance, from the census of 1831.

The cure of the Six hundred and two benefices aforesaid, of which one is a sinecure, and of the twenty-three chapelries founded within some of these benefices, has been committed to the charge of six hundred and one incumbents, aided and assisted by three hundred and seventy stipendiary curates or chaplains. And the annual revenue of these benefices for the three years ending 1831, or up to the latest period the Returns have been made, appears to amount to a gross sum of £.299,111. 1. 1., and to a net sum of £.253,530. 11. 6., thereby yielding to each incumbent £.496. 17. 2¾. as the average amount of gross income, and £.421. 2. 11¼. as the average amount of net income.

The principal sources from whence these revenues arise are the Tithe compositions and glebe lands; but in regard to any other source of available revenue, it occurs so seldom and is of such inconsiderable amount in these benefices as to be quite undeserving of special notice;—the Easter offerings and small dues are entirely unknown;—the surplice fees in the country benefices appear, in general, to be but seldom, if ever, demanded;—only one of the aforesaid benefices yields any revenue from ministers' money;—and the income payable to perpetual curates, in the way of augmentation allowance out of Boulter's fund, does not, in the two provinces, exceed the sum of £.2,548. 1. 7¾. per annum.

It is however to be observed, that the average amount of gross and net incomes, as above stated, does not include any abatements on account of the £.15 per cent. allowable, by recent enactments, to such landlords as may have undertaken the payment of the tithe compositions; or of the tax chargeable, under the church temporalities act, on any promotions that may have taken place since the passing of that act; for as all the returns of income, with a few trifling exceptions, were made to the Commissioners previously to either of these enactments becoming law, they were not thought of at the time by the respective incumbents; but if these deductions be taken into account, the gross and net revenues of all parochial benefices, in future, will be considerably less than the average amounts above-mentioned.

The items which have been admitted as deductions against the gross amounts of revenue, so as to arrive at the net annual incomes of the benefices, are—the expenses of collection; the annual charges payable under the heads of parochial and diocesan schoolmasters, visitation fees, quit, crown and glebe rents, and the county cess chargeable on glebe lands; the annual instalments in repayment of monies lent by the late Trustees and Commissioners of First-Fruits for building glebe-houses; as also, the interest of any monies outlying, which incumbents may have paid out of their private funds on account of the glebe houses, at the rate of £.5 per cent. for such proportions thereof as are recoverable from their successors, and of £.10 per cent. for such proportions, as have been paid their predecessors but are not recoverable from their successors; and, in case there is not any glebe house, the annual amount of house-rent or lodging money paid by resident incumbents; in addition to which, wherever an incumbent is chargeable with a fixed annual money-payment to any perpetual or district cure, such payment has been allowed as a deduction against the gross amount of revenue. But it must not be supposed that these are the only demands to which the parochial clergy are subject; in many cases, it appears by the returns, that the calls on the clergy for the relief of the poor, the erection and support of schools, subscriptions to hospitals, infirmaries and various charities, are numerous, and amount to no inconsiderable sum; but as the Commissioners have viewed these, and all such like demands, in the way of voluntary, and not necessary, contributions, which the clergy may either give or withhold, as their discretion directs, they have not taken these into account as yearly or temporary payments properly chargeable, as such, on their respective benefices.

The glebe houses, of which there are Four hundred and sixty-six in number in the two provinces of Armagh and Tuam, have been, for the most part, erected within the present century under the old and new acts in that case made and provided—greater facilities having of late years been granted to encourage and promote the building of glebe-houses than formerly existed until within the last five years; during which period, the facilities previously enjoyed by the clergy having been withdrawn, the instances of new houses being undertaken are extremely rare, if indeed any such instances exist.

An incumbent building or improving a glebe-house, under the old acts, must proceed according to certain prescribed regulations, in order to charge his successors with any proportion of the monies advanced out of his own private funds for such buildings or improvements; and, to this effect, he must apply by memorial to his diocesan for leave to build or improve, which, being granted, the incumbent is authorized to obtain from the diocesan a commission of view and valuation, and upon a return being made, by the commissioners appointed for that purpose, of a true and faithful account and estimate of the said buildings and improvements, the diocesan grants the incumbent a certificate under his hand and seal, which sets out the clear yearly value of the benefice, and finally settles and ascertains the sums to be allowed, as really and fairly expended; and when such certificate is duly registered in the registry of the diocese, the incumbent, or his executors and administrators respectively, become thereby entitled to recover from the next successor three-fourths of the money expended on the buildings or improvements, provided the whole expenditure shall not exceed two years' income of the benefice; and each succeeding incumbent becomes thereby also chargeable with a certain proportion of the monies so expended, less by one-fourth than the original amount of the expenditure on the erection or improvements of such glebe-house; so that the entire expense incurred is liquidated by the builder or improver, and the next three incumbents in succession; except where an incumbent builds on a new site, in which case the incumbent, or his executor, is by law enabled to recover, instead of three-fourths, the whole amount of expenditure from his next successor, provided it does not exceed the two years' income, as aforesaid; and the successor, paying the whole amount, may thereby recover three-fourths thereof from his successor, by which arrangement the whole amount expended in building on a new site will be liquidated by such building-incumbent, and the next four incumbents in succession.

In addition to the monies expended by incumbents out of their own funds, the Trustees and Commissioners of First-Fruits were, by the old acts, authorized to grant One hundred pounds in way of gift, on certificate of a proper house having been built on the glebe; which hundred pounds were not to be comprised in the Bishop's certificate, as aforesaid; but under the new acts, the monies granted by the Trustees, in way of gifts, were allowed to be increased by the sum of Fifty pounds, as the annual value of the benefice decreased by Fifty pounds below a standard amount of income, as follows;—gifts, to the amount of Two hundred pounds were allowed where the annual value of the benefice did not exceed Four hundred pounds; and gifts, to the amount of Two hundred and fifty pounds where the annual value did not exceed Three hundred and fifty pounds, and so on, the gifts increased by Fifty pounds, as the annual annual value of the benefice decreased by Fifty pounds, until at length the gifts amounted to Four hundred pounds, where the annual value of the benefice did not exceed Two hundred pounds, which was the greatest amount of gift allowed, with the exception of perpetual cures and benefices, not exceeding One hundred pounds in annual value, in which cases only, gifts, to the amount of Four hundred and fifty pounds were allowed to be made;—but wherever the annual value of the benefice exceeded the sum of Four hundred pounds, no greater gift than One hundred pounds was allowed to be made, towards defraying the expense of building glebe-houses.

As the new acts, however, declared it to be expedient that more effectual provision should be made for the residence of the clergy, this object was chiefly effected by means of the sums of money, which the trustees were thereby empowered to grant, in way of loans, for building glebe-houses; due regard being had to the annual value of the respective benefices. These loans of money were, in the first instance, made repayable at £.6 per cent., but were subsequently reduced to £.4 per cent., and the difference between the amount of such loans and two years' income of the benefice, the incumbents were by law enabled to advance out of their private funds, and to charge their successors with the repayment thereof in the manner provided for under the old acts, by each incumbent losing one-fourth of the money so advanced, until the whole was liquidated. Previously, however, to the commencement of any buildings or improvements under the new acts, the like regulations as have been already prescribed, in addition to the approval of the plan and estimate of the works, were rendered indispensably necessary; and, before the issue of the entire amount of the grant, a certificate was required by the statute of the due expenditure of the whole amount of the sum granted by the trustees, in addition to the amount of the value of two years' income of the benefice; or, in case of a perpetual cure, in addition to the sum of Fifty pounds. Of the loans now outstanding, as liens, on the subsisting benefices, these amount, in the two provinces, to an entire sum of £.77,654. 16. 0½., repayable by annual instalments of £.4 per cent., which will terminate about the year 1850;—and of the monies certified to have been advanced by incumbents, out of their own private funds, and remaining due for the building or improvement of glebe-houses, these also are liens on the subsisting benefices, and amount, in the two provinces, to an entire sum of £.138,976. 18. 7¼., repayable to the present incumbents by their successors, in the proportion and to the amount, specified in each case, respectively; although it will appear that, in several instances, incumbents have expended, on the building or improvement of their glebe-houses, considerably more money than the two years' income of their respective benefices; but any such excess, in some cases amounting to one thousand, and in others to fifteen hundred or two thousand pounds, is not recoverable from their successors, but a loss to be borne by the builder or improver himself, as a voluntary expenditure. With respect to these observations, it may be remarked, that we deemed it advisable to go somewhat into the detail of the statutes made and provided for the building and improvement of glebe-houses, in order to explain the nature of the inquiries instituted in this respect, and the information to be found in the annexed digest on the subject; by which it will appear, that the number of glebe-houses built, under the old acts, is considerably less than that which has been erected, under the new acts, between the years 1809 and 1830.

But the benefit of these enactments, in providing residences for the parochial clergy, is not more conspicuous and manifest than of others, of a similar nature, for the protection of religion and morality, by the encouragement and facilities afforded in the building of churches and chapels of ease; for although the common law allowed the major part of the parishioners of any parish to make a rate for the building building or enlargement of any church, with the leave of the diocesan, yet the funds required for the erection of churches in Ireland were, previously to the Union, usually supplied to a certain extent by Parliamentary grants, amounting, most commonly, to five thousand pounds per annum, made, for this purpose, to the trustees and commissioners of First-Fruits, to be applied, as to them might seem meet. The number of churches, notwithstanding, was found to be so inconsiderable, or so materially deficient, in many parts of Ireland, in the commencement of the present century, as to need the interposition of the legislature, by enabling all persons desirous of contributing to the supply of these defects, to grant lands, not exceeding five acres, or goods and chattels, not exceeding five hundred pounds, for the building or re-building of any church or chapel, &c., under the provisions of an act of the forty-third year of Geo. III.

Neither did this provision meet the exigency of the case, until at length the legislature considered it expedient, in the forty-eighth year of the same reign, to make effectual provision for the building and rebuilding of churches in Ireland, by authorizing the issue of monies to the trustees of First-Fruits, and by enabling the said trustees, in their discretion, to grant sums of money, by way of gifts or loans, upon an application in writing, accompanied by a plan and estimate of the buildings;—and, in case of loans of money, to take sufficient security from the parties applying for the due application and expenditure of the money advanced, within two years after the same was granted.

The attainment of the beneficial effects of this measure was impeded for a time, in consequence of the inconvenience resulting to individuals from entering into bonds and securities; until, in the succeeding year of that reign, this provision was repealed, and, in lieu of the security required by bond for monies advanced by way of loans, the inhabitants of any parish or place, in vestry assembled, were empowered to make an assessment upon the parish of a sum equal in amount to the entire of the loan, repayable in seventeen successive years, by instalments of £. 6. per cent., which were reduced by the fourth of Geo. IV. to £. 4 per cent. on the sums then remaining due, and on those to be subsequently advanced;—and on production of a certificate, signed by the churchwardens or two of the protestant inhabitants of any parish, that such assessments had been made, and approved by the ordinary, the trustees were authorized to advance the money accordingly; the instalments, when raised, were made payable to the churchwardens, who within twenty-one days after the first of July in every year, were bound to pay over the same to the trustees of First-Fruits.

This system of issuing monies by way of loans, repayable by annual instalments at a low rate of interest, has tended more than any other to promote the building of churches and chapels of ease in Ireland, of which there are in number, at the present time, Six hundred and forty-two in these two provinces, affording accommodation to 193,798 persons. All parts of the country seem to have availed themselves of the advantage, and considerable sums were accordingly granted by the trustees of First-Fruits, not only in the way of loans, but also in that of gifts, as those columns in the annexed digest, which relate to the building or repair of churches, will not only abundantly testify, but also furnish numerous instances of the liberality, and, in some cases, the munificence of the private donations made for the building of churches, amounting to no less a sum than £. 109,816. 15. 8. contributed, not merely by many of the nobility and gentry of the country, but also by the clergy themselves, and in some instances by public companies and institutions. Of the loans, it appears that there remained due to the trustees in the year 1832, by several parishes, various sums of money, amounting to an entire sum of £. 132,863. 10. 9½. in the two provinces of Armagh and Tuam, from the repayment of which the Parishioners have been wholly discharged, as all monies, so remaining due and unpaid, were remitted under the provisions of the act of the 3d and 4th Will. IV.

Connected with the subject of churches are the duties performed therein, which appear most generally to be the celebration of divine service twice on all Sundays during the summer half-year, and once during the winter half-year, and on certain festivals; the due administration of the Holy Communion; and, in general, a weekly catechetical examination of the children; although it will be found that in many of the churches, divine service is celebrated twice on Sundays during the entire of the year, and occasionally on week-days; and that in several benefices of large extent, an additional service is performed every Sunday either by the rector or curate, or on alternate Sundays, or on week-days, with leave of the ordinary, in remote districts of the benefice, more convenient for the resort of such parishioners as live at a distance from the church. Independently of the church service, it is observed in the returns made by the incumbents, that there are various duties incidental to the clerical office which are not noticed in the digest; such as marriages, burials, christenings, visitations of the sick, and such like, which latter duty becomes more onerous in those districts where the protestant population lies scattered over a large extent of territorial surface.

Formerly all church rates and cesses were made and agreed to by the churchwardens and the major part of the protestant parishioners in vestry assembled, and these rates were imposed, applotted, collected and levied by the acts in that case made and provided; all which acts, or such parts thereof as relate to church rates and cesses, were repealed, and a new provision introduced by the 7th Geo. IV. for the regulation of these matters in future. By one of these regulations, all rates for the building, re-building, enlarging or repair of any church or chapel, for providing things necessary for the celebration of divine service therein, the election of churchwardens, the salaries of parish clerks or sextons, and the demising or disposal of any estate, or the income thereof, held in trust for any church, are directed to be proceeded with at a vestry holden for these purposes, and none other; at which vestries no inhabitant of such parish, being a Roman Catholic, was rendered capable of voting; the vestries so holden are commonly called exclusive vestries, or vestries holden for church purposes; but by the other regulation contained in this Statute, every parishioner, chargeable with church rate or cess, of whatever religious persuasion he may be, is declared eligible to vote at vestries for any purposes other than those hereinbefore specially mentioned, which vestries are commonly called the general, or open vestries.

This enactment, therefore, will explain the nature of the distinction taken in the annexed digest between the sums voted at the exclusive, from those voted at the general, vestries; and, although in some parishes vestries have been held since the passing of the act, for exclusive or church purposes, separate and distinct from those holden for general purposes, yet this has been by no means an universal practice, for in many parishes there has been but one vestry holden, and that an exclusive vestry, at which the sums required for general purposes, continued to be voted as usual; while, in other parishes the general vestry was the only vestry held, at which the sums required for church purposes were as readily granted; so that, in those parishes, where the distinction between church and general purposes was not recognized and acknowledged by a separate and distinct vestry being held for each purpose, no other means presented itself of ascertaining the relative amount of each item, than by classifying the several items and sums voted at one and the same vestry, though for purposes in themselves totally different and distinct; which classification became the more important from the consideration that all rates and assessments for exclusively exclusively church purposes have been declared totally void, and have wholly ceased and determined, under the provisions of the act of the 3d & 4th Will. IV., the amount of which assessments for church purposes, in the two provinces of Armagh and Tuam alone, for the three years ending 1831 or 1832, averages at an annual gross sum of £.26,836. 5. 10. while the annual amount of the sums, required for general purposes, in the three years ending as aforesaid, averages at £.11,289. 8. 1½. which latter assessments are not remitted under the provisions of the aforesaid statute, the purposes to which they are made applicable being of a general nature, and no way referable to any church purpose whatsoever; such as, the care and maintenance of foundlings and deserted children, the providing coffins for the poor, repairs of graveyards and houses of sextons, supply of graveyard implements, salaries of vestry clerks, parish headles, constables, and such like; in some parishes the repairs of Roman Catholic chapels and dissenting meeting houses have been provided for at the general vestries, and in others, the repair of bye-roads, which latter is applicable and in use only in some parts of the diocese and county of Armagh, under the special provisions of the Ulster Road act.

With respect to the patronage of the six hundred and two benefices in these provinces, about two-thirds thereof, or four hundred and twenty-three, either belong to the collation of the Archbishops, and Bishops of the respective dioceses, or to the incumbents in right of their respective benefices, and in regard to the remainder, or one hundred and seventy-nine benefices, fifty-three appear to belong to Your Majesty's patronage, one hundred and three to lay and corporation patronage, and the residue is vested in alternate or such like presentation, the particulars of which are specified in the case of each benefice, respectively, in the annexed digest.

And, lastly, for the names or proper titles of any benefices or other ecclesiastical offices now held by each incumbent respectively; and for all the particulars and other circumstances, connected as well with each benefice individually, as with each diocese at large, we beg leave most respectfully to refer to the columns of the tabular digest hereunto annexed for the details, and to the summaries subjoined to each diocese for the results, of our inquiries into the revenues and patronage of all ecclesiastical benefices in the two provinces of Armagh and Tuam, as calculated to afford much fuller and more satisfactory information respecting them, than it would be possible to comprise in any general statement on the subject.

All which is most humbly submitted to Your Majesty's consideration, by

ARTICLES OF INQUIRY

Transmitted to the respective Incumbents of Benefices.

State 1.—THE name of the benefice; and the name of each chapelry (if any) thereto belonging, not having a separate incumbent; and if an union, the names of the several parishes of which it is composed; also, the greatest length and breadth of the parish or parishes, and benefice; the reputed number of acres in each parish or parishes, respectively; and the general quality of the land in each.

State 2.—Whether it is a rectory, vicarage, donative, perpetual curacy, or chapelry; and whether with, or without, cure of souls.

State 3.—If the benefice be not a rectory, to whom the rectory or rectorial tithes belong, or is, or are, reputed to belong; what is the reputed amount in value of such rectory; in what manner is the rector paid; if from portions of tithes, what is the proportion payable to the rector, and what to the vicar.

State 4.—In what county and diocese the benefice is locally situate.

State 5.—Whether subject to episcopal, or to some, and what, peculiar or exempt jurisdiction.

State 6.—The name of the incumbent, and the date of his admission.

State 7.—To whom the advowson of the benefice belongs, or is reputed to belong.

State 8.—The population within the limits of the benefice, specifying the amount within each chapelry (if any) thereto belonging, according to the census of 1831.

State 9.—Whether the incumbent usually resides within the benefice; and if not, for what reason, and where.

State 10.—How many curates (if any) are employed by the incumbent; and whether for separate parishes in the same union; and how many curates have been employed at any one time within the last three years, specifying the reasons for the augmentation or diminution of the number.

State 11.—The amount of stipend, or other allowance, paid to each curate.

State 12.—The number of churches and chapels, and how many persons they are severally capable of accommodating; how far distant, if more than one church or chapel, from each other; when each was built, at what expense, and from what funds; how much of the cost of building remains a charge on the parish, and when will the same be paid off.

State 13.—What duty is performed in each church and chapel.

State 14.—Whether there is a glebe house fit for the residence of the incumbent, and if unfit, why; when built, at what expense, and from what funds; whether built under the old or new acts; if under the old, state the amount of the original certificate, or any subsequent certificates, of improvement; the number of incumbents in succession from the original builder; the amount of charge paid by the present incumbent, and the amount payable by his successor; if built under the new acts, state the amount of the gift and loan respectively granted by the Trustees and Commissioners of First-Fruits, and the amounts certified, as expended by the builder himself, or any improver, of his own money; the annual amount of the instalment payable on the loan; how many such instalments remain to be paid; what the amount of the certified sums paid by the present incumbent, and what the amount payable by his successor.

State 15.

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

State 15.—Whether the incumbent or his curate usually resides in the glebe-house, or if not, to whom it is let, or by whom occupied; and if there be no glebe-house, or none fit for residence, what rent is paid by the incumbent for a house or lodging for himself.

State 16.—The gross amount of the annual income of the benefice (including therein, and stating, the amount of those sums which are due on the foot of such income, but remain unpaid, and which are not expected to be received) on an average of three years past ending December 1831.

State 17.—How much thereof from land, whether let, or in the incumbent's occupation, and also (if any) how much from houses.

State 18.—How much thereof from tithes taken in kind.

State 19.—How much thereof from compositions for tithes.

State 20.—How much thereof from corn-rents or other sources.

State 21.—How much thereof from dividends or interest arising from stock in the public funds, or monies appropriated, or in any manner secured, to the benefice.

State 22.—How much thereof from ministers' money, stipends, pensions, or some and what other kind of fixed money payments, distinguishing each.

State 23.—How much thereof from Easter offerings and small dues.

State 24.—How much thereof from surplice and other fees.

State 25.—How much thereof from other sources not before described, naming them, and the amount from each.

State 26.—The number of acres of glebe land in each and every parish, specifying whether plantation, cunningham or statute measure; what the average value of such glebe per acre; whether there is any and what rent payable for, or in respect of, such glebe, and to whom; and whether the glebes consist wholly of profitable land, or how otherwise.

State 27.—The gross amount of the yearly payments charged upon and made out of the income of the benefice and glebe land occupied by the incumbent, (except rates and taxes in respect of the glebe house and offices, repairs and stipend to any curate or curates), on an average of three years past, ending as aforesaid.

State 28.—The amount of each class of such yearly payments, under its proper title.

State 29.—The net amount of the average annual income of the benefice, after deducting such payments (except as aforesaid.)

Note.—(It is requested that no deduction be made for the amount of sums due and remaining unpaid, though not expected to be received.)

State 30.—Whether the amount of the net yearly produce, to be stated in pursuance of the preceding inquiry may, in the judgment of the incumbent, on a full consideration of the nature of his revenues, be fairly reckoned on as the average amount, communibus annis, of the net yearly produce of such revenues, for the future; or, whether a greater or less yearly sum may, in his judgment, be expected, and to what amount, and for what reasons.

State 31.—The particulars of the amount assessed upon the parish at the vestries in each of the last three years, distinguishing the sums raised at the exclusive vestries from those raised at the general vestries, in each of those years.

State 32.—In case there are any temporary charges on the benefice, specify the nature of such charges, and the amount of the yearly payments in respect thereof, and at what time the same will terminate.

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

State 33 —In case there are any other yearly payments incident to the benefice, though not actual charges thereon, which in the opinion of the incumbent ought to be stated, specify the nature and amount thereof respectively, and such further particulars as he may deem necessary.

State 34.—Whether the incumbent of the benefice is, in right thereof, patron of any and what ecclesiastical benefice, perpetual curacy, or chapelry, and give the name thereof; and state in what diocese the same is situate.

State 35.—The name or proper title of every dignity, prebend, canonry, and other ecclesiastical preferment in any cathedral or collegiate church, or collegiate chapel; and of every benefice, donative, perpetual curacy, or chapelry, with or without cure, and in what county and diocese the same may be; and of every other ecclesiastical preferment, of whatsoever kind, now held by the incumbent; and this is required notwithstanding he may already have made a statement of such particulars, in pursuance of any other inquiry made by the Commissioners.

| Innisheen glebe-house, built under the new acts, in the year 1824, at an expense estimated to amount to 1,200*l.* British; of which sum there was advanced by the late board of First Fruits 830*l.* 15*s.* 4½*d.* in the way of loan, and 92*l.* 6*s.* 1¾*d.* in that of gift, and the residue of 276*l.* 18*s.* 5½*d.*, was supplied out of the private funds of Incumbent, who will be entitled to receive from his successor the whole of the sum last-mentioned. Of the loan aforesaid, 472*l.* 11*s.* 10¾*d.* remained chargeable on the benefice in 1832, repayable by annual instalments of 33*l.* 4*s.* 8*d.* Incumbent occasionally resides, but is more generally absent, having leave from his diocesan, in consequence of ill health. | One church, capable of containing 150 persons, but the date and cost of its erection are unknown, there was not any charge on the parish in 1832 on account of the church. Divine service is performed on Sundays twice during the summer months, and once during the rest of the year, and on Christmas-day and on Good Friday. The Sacrament is administered eight times in the year. | Church Purposes:To repairs of church £. 4 13 4„ Clerk's salary - 10 – –„ Sexton's ditto - 5 – –„ Communion elements - - 1 10„ Collector's and applotter's fees - 2 16 3£ 23 19 7*N. | Innismacsaint glebe-house, built by the present Incumbent, under the new acts, in 1829, at an expense of 1,759*l.* British, of which sum, there was advanced by the late board of First Fruits 1,000*l.* in the way of loan, and 100*l.* in the way of gift, and the residue of 659*l.*, was supplied out of Incumbent's private funds, the whole of which sum last mentioned, he will be entitled to receive from his successor. There remained of the loan aforesaid, 920*l.*, chargeable on the Benefice in 1832, repayable by annual instalments of 40*l.* Incumbent resides constantly in the glebe house. N. B.—Incumbent expended, in addition to the monies aforesaid, 401*l.* 7*s.*, without certificate, so as to charge his successor with the repayment of any portion thereof. | One church and two chapels of ease, called Slavan and Finnar, in this parish, the church, capable of containing 400 persons, has been lately re-built, in the year 1831, at an expense of 1384*l.* 12*s.* 3¾*d.*, advanced in the way of loan by the late board of First Fruits, of which loan, there remained chargeable to the parish in 1832, the sum of 1,163*l.*, repayable by annual instalments of 55*l.* 8*s.*, of which instalments, one-fifth was contributed by the Marquess of Ely, and the remainder by that portion of the parish in which the church and Slavan chapel are situated. Each chapel of ease is capable of containing 180 persons, but with respect to the date of their erection, or the funds supplied from whence, no accurate information can be obtained. No charge on the parish in 1832, on account of either of these chapels. Divine service is performed every Sunday in the church twice during the summer months, and once during the remainder of the year, and on Christmas-day and Good Friday. One service only is celebrated on Sundays in each chapel, and on Good Friday and Christmas-day, but during the summer months, evening service is likewise performed in other parts of the district, for the convenience of persons who reside at a distance from the chapels. The Sacrament is administered monthly in the mother church, and six times in the year in each of the chapels of ease. | Upper Division.Church Purposes:To Church loan instalments - - £. 44 6 2„ Parish clerk's salary - - - 10 – –„ Sexton's ditto - - - - 4 – –„ Ditto of grave-yard - - - 10 –„ Communion elements - - - 3 3 4„ Provide fuel - - - - 1 2 8„ Repairs of church - - - - 26 16 6„ Clerk of Slavan chapel - - - 8 – –„ Sextoness of ditto - - - - 2 10 –„ Communion elements - - - – 13 4£ 101 2 –General Purposes:To Sundries, the particulars of which are not specified - - - - £ 30 2 6Lower Division.Church Purposes:To Salary of clerk of Finner chapel - £. 10 – –„ Sexton's ditto - - - - 4 – –„ Communion elements - - - 2 10 –„ Washing church linen - - - – 7 6„ Repairs of roof, pews, &c., of church - 1 19 –„ Collector's and applotter's fees - - 3 13 –£ 22 9 6General Purposes.To Vestry clerk's salary - - - £. 4 6 8„ Provide coffins for the poor - - 8 13 11¾„ Erect church-yard wall and gate - 6 6 11„ Viewing the parish - - - 5 13 4„ Grave-yard implements and trespassers – 11 10½£ 20 12 9¼*N. | Ardglass glebe-house, in tolerable order, built under the new acts, in 1816, at the cost of 461*l.* 10*s.* 9½*d.* Brit.; of which sum, 415*l.* 7*s.* 8½*d.* was granted as gift, and 46*l.* 3*s.* 1*d.* as loan by the late board of First Fruits. There remained of the loan aforesaid, 17*l.* 4*s.* 2*d.* chargeable on the benefice in 1832, repayable by annual instalments of 19*s.* 5*d.* Incumbent constantly resides in the glebe-house. | One church, capable of accommodating 300 persons, built in 1813, at the cost of 1,107*l.* 13*s.* 10½*d.* Brit.; of which sum, 735*l.* 9*s.* 2½*d.* was granted in way of gift, and 369*l.* 4*s.* 7½*d.* in that of loan by the late board of First Fruits. There was not any charge on the parish in 1832 on account of the church. Divine service is performed twice on Sundays during six months, and once during the remainder of the year. The Sacrament is administered eight times in the year. | Church Purposes: To Parish clerk's salary - £. 7 – –; „ Sexton's ditto - 3 – –; „ Communion elements - - 1 5 –; „ Other items* not specified, about 3 15 –; £. 15 – –. N. B.—The sums required for church purposes have been voted at general vestries; no exclusive vestries being held in this parish. * Incumbent states he cannot answer what were the precise sums laid on at vestries for the three years ending 1832, as the parish books are in the possession of the representatives of the late Incumbent, but he states it to be his belief, that the sum assessed, seldom exceeded 15*l.* per annum | The Chancellor of Connor, as rector of Ardglass parish. | The benefice of Ardglass, within which the perpetual cure has been established, is a rectory. | None. | None. |
| Ardkeen glebe-house, in good order, built in 1815, under the new acts, at the cost of 461*l.* 10*s.* 9½*d.* Brit., of which sum, there was granted in way of gift, 415*l.* 7*s.* 8½*d.*, and in that of loan, 46*l.* 3*s.* 1*d.* by the late board of First Fruits; of the loan aforesaid, there remained 17*l.* 10*s.* chargeable on the benefice in 1832, repayable by annual instalments of 1*l.* 5*s.* 10*d.* Incumbent is non-resident; he resides at a distance of two miles, in the town of Downpatrick. The Curate resides in the glebe-house. Exclusive of the monies aforesaid, the builder is reported to have expended 200*l.* of his own money on the house, without certificate, so as to charge his successor. | One church, capable of accommodating 200 persons, supposed to have been built in the year 1500, and repaired in 1650, by private subscription. There was no charge on the parish in 1832 on account of this church. Divine service is celebrated once on Sundays, and on Good Friday and Christmas-day. The Sacrament is administered six times in the year. N. B.—With respect to this church, it is observed that it is built in a very bad situation, almost insulated, and in winter nearly impossible of access at times, on account of the tide. If placed in the centre of the parish, convenient to the Episcopalians and Dissenters, it is conceived that there would be a very large congregation. | Exclusive Vestries: To Clerk's salary £ 10 – –; „ Sexton's ditto - 2 10 –; „ Communion elements - - 1 – –; „ Repairs of church 1 – –; „ Washing linen - – 10 –; „ Cover for communion table - – 11 8; „ Repair of windows - – – 9; „ Whitewashing church, &c. - – 10 –; £. 16 2 5. General Vestries: To Coffins for poor £ 2 8 3½; „ Provide fuel - – 10 –; £. 2 18 3½. N. B.—The foregoing are average amounts of the sums voted at vestries for the three years ending 1832 | The Prebendary of St. Andrew's, as rector of Ardkeen parish. | The benefice of Ardkeen, within which the perpetual cure of the same name has been established, is a rectory. | None. | Besides the perpetual cure of Ardkeen, with spiritual duties annexed;—Incumbent holds the stipendiary curacy of the parish of Inch, close to the town of Downpatrick;—and the situation of master of the diocesan school of Down. |

B.—Of the annuity of 276 l. 18 s 5½ d, with which the tithes of the parishes, constituting the deanery of Down, stood charged under the act 30 Geo III., ch 43, a certain proportion, amounting to 40 l, was made chargeable on the disappropriated parish of Ballyculter, by Order in Council of 31st October 1834 | £ s. d. 334 1 3 N. B.—It is observed, that Incumbent received 20 l per annum from the late Lord Henry Fitzgerald, for the two years next after his appointment to Strangford chapel, which payment was subsequently discontinued for sixteen years, although the duty was done, but it has since been resumed by his son, Lord de Roos |

N. B.—A perpetual cure, of the same name, had been established within the rectory of Ballee, which parish was appropriated to the deanery of Down, but by Order in Council of 31st October 1834, the rectory of Ballee was disunited from the deanery, and said rectory, with the perpetual cure thereof, was erected into a separate and distinct parish, severing therefrom the tithe composition arising from and out of the seven townlands of Shrenaghgriddle, Loughmoy, Carrownacow, Ballyrenan, Ballyallen, and Upper and Lower Ballynagross in Ballee parish, and annexing same for ever to the aforesaid deanery—but providing that the cure of souls within said townlands shall continue to belong to the rectory of Ballee. The two townlands of Jordanscrew and Kildarescrew, with the tithe composition, and cure of souls therein, were, by said order, disunited from Ballee parish, and annexed to the perpetual cure of Ardglass, to which cure was also annexed the tithe composition arising from Ballyhossett townland, situate in Ballee parish—providing, however, that the cure of souls within Ballyhossett townland shall continue to belong to the rectory of Ballee,—and by the order aforesaid, the townland of Ballystokes, with the tithe composition, and cure of souls thereof, was disunited from Ballee parish, and annexed for ever to the parish of Saul

N. B.—A perpetual cure, by name Ballyculter, had been erected within Ballyculter parish, which was appropriated and annexed to the deanery of Down; but by Order in Council of 31st October 1834, the rectory of Ballyculter was disappropriated from the deanery, and said rectory, with the perpetual cure thereof, formed into a separate and distinct parish. The two detached townlands of Killard, Upper and Lower, with the tithe composition and cure of souls thereof, were, by said Order, severed from Ballyculter parish, and annexed for ever to the adjoining parish of Kilcleif,—and the tithe composition arising from the townlands of Raholpe and Ballintleave in Ballyculter parish, severed from said rectory, and united for ever to the parish of Saul; providing, however, that the cure of souls within these townlands shall continue to belong to Ballyculter rectory. And in lieu of such severance, the three detached townlands of Whitehall, Ballinarry and Ballynagarick, with the tithe composition arising therefrom, were, by order aforesaid, disunited from Saul parish, and united for ever to the adjoining parish of Ballyculter; annexing, however, at the same time, the cure of souls within these townlands to the adjoining parish of Kilcleif.

| N. B.—By Order in Council, dated the 24th March 1835, the benefices of Stranorlar, Leck, Killygarvan and Lettermacaward, were disappropriated from and out of the deanery of Raphoe; each of the benefices of Leck, Killygarvan and Lettermacaward, with its respective perpetual cure, was erected into a separate and distinct parish or benefice; and the rectory and vicarage of Raphoe benefice alone constituted the new corps of the deanery, and, in the parish of Stranorlar, as there were two endowed perpetual cures, one, named Stranorlar, and the other Kilteevock, the rectory and vicarage of Stranorlar were united to the perpetual cure of Stranorlar, and erected into a separate and distinct parish or benefice. And it was further directed, by said Order, that the Dean of Raphoe and his successors shall continue in the possession of the several glebes belonging to the deanery, with the exception of those of Drumdany and Drumfad, which were united to the rectory and vicarage of Killygarvan, to the use of the Incumbent thereof and his successors for ever. | | | | | | | | | |

N.B.—The Incumbent deemed it necessary, for the information of the Ecclesiastical Revenue Commissioners, chiefly with reference to Queries 9, 12 and 14, to acquaint them with some peculiar circumstances connected with the prebend of Balla; and observes, "that the union of Balla comprises six parishes; three, viz. Balla, Minola and Rosslee, belong to the prebendary of Balla; and three, viz Ballintubber, Towaghty and Drum, to the Vicars Choral of Christ Church; that in the last-named parish is the union church, a glebe of about ten acres, and a glebe-house, that the Protestant families of the prebend of Balla, with a few exceptions, reside in the village of Minola; that from the period the Vicars Choral obtained their grant, in the reign of King Charles the Second, they gave to the prebendaries of Balla one-third of the tithes of the parishes of Ballintubber, Towaghty and Drum, with the glebe and glebe-house, for discharging the duties of the union, and acting as their Curates; but finding the tithes become valuable, they determined to dispossess the prebendaries of their thirds, and leased them to the late Dr Spray, he undertaking to carry on the legal proceedings which should be found necessary; and accordingly Dr. Spray instituted a suit against Incumbent's immediate predecessor, the rev. John Davis, which, on his succeeding to the benefice, was continued against him; and after much litigation, it was ascertained that, notwithstanding the long and undisturbed possession of the Incumbents of Balla, the right of ownership to the parishes of Ballintubber, Towaghty and Drum, lay with the Vicars Choral, and the Incumbent of Balla was regularly evicted from these thirds of tithes, and dispossessed of the glebe-lands of Belcarra, and the new glebe-house he had built 'pendente lite.' Since that period the duties of the union have been done, and the house and glebe-lands occupied, by the rev. James Hamilton, to whom half a Curate's salary is paid by the Incumbent of Balla, in consideration of his discharging the cure of souls in his moiety of the union. From whence Incumbent observes, that his being a non-curist was occasioned by an eviction from his church, glebe and glebe-house, by law, whereby he sustained a loss of one-third of the tithes, and a moiety of the union, valued at about 200*l.* per annum, that were it necessary for him to reside, which, as the cure of souls is duly provided for, is not the case, he could not obtain a fit dwelling-place within the parishes comprising the prebend of Balla; and since his eviction from the cure and emoluments attached to this portion of the union, and since the Vicars Choral have been in possession of the entire tithes, they have refused to contribute to the support of the Curate, although, as incumbent considers, the cure of souls of the union should be entirely defrayed by them."

With respect to the parishes of Drummonaghan, Ballintubber and Towaghty, it appears that there is a new church in Drummonaghan parish, capable of accommodating 160 persons, built about eighty years ago by the board of First Fruits, but at what cost unknown, in which church divine service is generally celebrated twice on Sundays in summer, and once in winter, and on the festivals, and the Sacrament administered four times in the year; that there is a glebe-house in said parish in possession of the Curate, which house was built in 1822 by the present Incumbent of Balla union under the new acts, at an expense of 489*l.* 4*s.* 7½*d.* Brit., granted by the late board of First Fruits, viz. 415*l.* 7*s.* 8½*d.* in way of gift, and 73*l.* 16*s.* 11*d.* in that of loan, of which loan there remained 118*l.* 4*s.* chargeable on the benefice in 1832, repayable by annual instalments of 5*l.* 18*s.*

The following are the particulars of the sums voted at general vestries held in Drum parish, for this union, for the three years ending 1831

| The glebe-house, situate in Omey or Umna parish, built in 1823, under the new acts, at the cost of 507*l.* 13*s.* 10½*d.* Brit granted by the late board of First Fruits, viz. 415*l.* 7*s.* 8½*d.* as gift, and 92*l.* 6*s.* 1¾*d.* as loan; of which loan there remained 62*l.* 15*s.* 5*d.* chargeable on the benefice in 1832, repayable by annual instalments of 3*l.* 13*s.* 10*d.* Incumbent is resident in the glebe-house. N.B.—Incumbent reports, that he has expended 100*l.* on the glebe-house, without having any charge on account of it from his successor, and he adds, "that it would be most desirable for the benefit of religion to sell this house, which is four miles distant from the church, to exchange the glebe land, and build a glebe-house near the town and church." | One small church, situate in the town of Clifden and parish of Omey, capable of accommodating 120 persons, built about the year 1812, at the cost of 553*l.* 16*s.* 11*d.* Brit granted as free gift by the late board of First Fruits. No charge on the union in 1832 on account of this church, which, it is reported, has cost considerable sums of money to repair, and was never a good substantial building; but, from the various obstacles in the way of collecting vestry cess, and the extreme difficulty of getting work executed in a proper manner, in so remote a district, by competent persons, the church has, in consequence, suffered, and is now in bad condition. Divine service is celebrated in the church twice on Sundays during the summer months, and once during the winter months and on the festivals. Service is also celebrated in private houses twice on all Sundays in the northern district of Ballinakill, and in the southern district of Moyrus parishes, and once on the festivals. The Sacrament is administered four times in the year in the church, and in each of the districts of this extensive union. | Exclusive Vestries. To Parish and vestry clerk's salary £. 12 10 –; „ Sexton's ditto – 6 – –; „ Communion elements – – 13 4; „ Provide fuel – 2 3 4; „ Repairs of church-yard wall – 7 10; „ Repairs done to schoolhouse for a temporary place of worship – 4 2; „ Balance due on former account 2 14 9¾; „ Parish registry – – 10 6; „ Expenses of collection – – 3 6 8; £ 33 10 7¾. General Vestries. To Coffins for the poor – £. 8 11 6; „ Expenses incurred in instituting processes for the recovery of assessment – 28 7 11; £ 36 19 5. The foregoing are the average amounts of the sums voted at vestries for the three years ending 1832. | The Diocesan. | The rectorial tithes of the parish of Killann and of the Islands of Aranmore, Aranbeg, Ennismain and Ennisker, constituting part of this union, are impropriate; those of Killann, consisting of one moiety of the tithes, and compounded for 45*l.*, belong to Thomas Martin, of Ballinahinch-Castle, esq.; and those of Aranmore and Aranbeg Islands, compounded for 20*l.* 1*s.* 0¾*d.*, of Ennisker, for 3*l.* 5*s.* 6¾*d.*; and of Ennismain, for 5*l.* 9*s.* 4½*d.*, are reputed to belong to the rev. John Digby and his heirs. | None. | None. |
| Ballinrobe glebe-house, built in 1818, under the new acts, at the cost of 1,633*l.* Brit.; whereof 969*l.* 4*s.* 8*d.* was granted in way of loan, and 92*l.* 6*s.* 1¾*d.* in that of gift, by the late board of First Fruits, and the residue of 571*l.* 9*s.* 2½*d.* was supplied out of the private funds of the builder, to whom the present Incumbent is next in succession, and having paid his predecessor's executors the whole of the sum last named, he will be entitled to receive 380*l.* 19*s.* 5½*d.* from his successor, on account thereof. Of the loan aforesaid, there remained 302*l.* 19*s.* chargeable on the benefice in 1832, repayable by annual instalments of 19*l.* 7*s.* 3*d.* Incumbent is resident in the glebe-house. | One church, capable of accommodating 350 persons, built about 95 years ago, but at what cost unknown. A tower was added to the church in 1816, at an expense of 276*l.* 18*s.* 5½*d.* Brit. granted in way of loan by the late board of First Fruits, of which loan there remained 120*l.* 7*s.* 3*d.* chargeable on the parish in 1832, repayable by annual instalments of 7*l.* 2*s.* 2*d.* Divine service is performed twice on Sundays, and on the festivals. The Sacrament is administered monthly. | Church Purposes.
